LITERATURE REFERENCES BSN PROGRAM

Revision 02 (November, 2024)

Acquiring Literature

Textbooks can be bought at scientific or regular bookstores, specialized web-shops, at publishers' web-shops and at discount web-shops. For most students buying specialized textbooks at a 'brick and mortar' bookstore is too much of a hassle. On the other hand buying textbooks at web-shops usually requires a credit or prepaid card, a Pay Pal account or similar methods of electronic payment, which may not be feasible or possible for all students. CUN therefore offers students to order books online for them.

CUN's Book Order Service

In case you don't have any electronic means of ordering books and you want CUN to order books for you online, you are required to pay the exact amount of the order, to CUN, by way of bank-wire, upfront. Book order requests can be placed online, using the Book Order Request Form (BORF). Paper BORF's are also available at the Student Services Office. A complete literature reference, including ISBN, is required. Student Services will then check availability and prices online. You can order new, used and e-books (if available). The desired type of textbook can be 'checked' on the BORF. In some cases books are not immediately available, so CUN can never guarantee a desired date of arrival. In general, CUN is not responsible for the actual deliverance of a book, so you have to make sure you order books in time! CUN is also not responsible for the availability of the desired type of textbook (new, used or e-book). After checking availability and prices, you will receive a Book Order Confirmation (BOC), stating the requested title and edition, the available textbook-type(s), the online price(s) and the online stock (if available). You will then have to confirm one of all given options, confirm the order request and send the BOC back to Student Services. As soon as the required order-amount is received in CUN's bank-account, the online order is placed. The moment an order has arrived, you are being notified.

For downloading certain content and e-books from the Barnes & Noble online bookstore, it may be necessary to create a personal Barnes & Noble 'Nook Book' account. Therefore it may not be possible for Student Services to order these, so called, 'Nook Books' or certain other downloadable content from Barnes & Noble. However, Student Services may be able to 'bulk-order' certain textbooks, using its CUN account.

We highly recommend using the VitalSource 'Bookshelf' system, although it's a personalized system, like Barnes & Noble's Nook Book system and CUN is not able to order e-books directly into your personal Bookshelf account. However, Student Services may be able to 'bulk-order' certain textbooks, using its CUN account. Please follow the VitalSource instructions below.

If, for a pressing reason, you cannot acquire one or more books in time or are not able to have one or more books available in time (at least one week before the start of the concerning course(s)), these books may be available in one of CUN's (online) libraries. Student Services will help you in accessing the proper (online) library.

Ordering books at online bookstores and web-shops

Discount web-shops offer used and new textbooks. Prices are often lower at discount web-shops, especially for used textbooks, which are usually in good or fair condition. However, it is not possible at most of these web-shops to get any kind of quantum discount and you should always double-check the available editions.

CUN's first choice online bookstore is VitalSource (<https://vitalsource.com>). VitalSource offers almost all e-books, necessary for following CUN's BSN courses. In order to download e-books it is necessary to create a personal VitalSource Bookshelf account. E-books can then be downloaded into a personal online library and from there be read, on a computer, tablet, smartphone or e-reader. E-books you buy against the 'lifetime' price, at VitalSource, will be downloadable to your own computer, tablet and smartphone, so you can integrate them in your own electronic repository, with (free) applications like 'Calibre'.

Warning: VitalSource apps only support the MS Windows operating system.

VitalSource instructions

Due to certain country-restrictions you can only order VitalSource e-books yourself if you are residing in one of the following countries:

- USA
- Canada
- Argentina
- Australia
- Germany
- Mexico
- Peru
- Saudi Arabia
- South Africa
- Spain
- UK

In case you are using the Internet from any other than these countries, CUN can order your e-books for you. Just follow the above mentioned BORF/BOC procedure. As soon as we have ordered your e-books, we receive a so called redemption-code, for every e-book we ordered for you. You can use these redemption-codes for downloading your e-books into your Bookshelf account, regardless of the country where you are residing or using the Internet.

To redeem a code, visit the VitalSource website and sign in to your (Bookshelf) account. Click 'Redeem Code', in the bar at the bottom of the page. Enter your redemption-code in the 'code-box' and click 'Redeem'. The corresponding e-book will be downloaded to your Bookshelf.

Certain e-books contain a separate e-resource access-code. These codes are usually associated with the VitalSource redemption-code, but will have to be revealed separately. By opening your Bookshelf, with the titles you redeemed, you will be prompted for e-resource access-code links, by the 'Resources' menu, if any. Click the links to reveal the access-codes. In case there is no 'Resources' menu, to show any e-resource access-codes, but you are sure one or more of your (new) titles have such a code, you can open the 'Tools' menu and click 'Update Library'. Mind you, that once you have revealed an e-resource access-code, the title can not be returned anymore.

Another trustworthy web-shop for new and used scientific textbooks is Barnes & Noble's online bookstore (<http://www.barnesandnoble.com/>). In order to download e-books it is necessary to create a personal Barnes & Noble account. E-books ('Nook Books') can then be downloaded into a personal online library and from there be read, on a computer, tablet, smartphone or e-reader and downloaded to your own computer.

In the Literature References given below, regular retail prices are given. You can order the books you need and desire yourself at discount web-shops (like Amazon or Ebay), at lower prices. For us, as a school, it is too much of a hassle and too much of a risk, but you can save money, by ordering titles yourself at discount web-shops. In case you prefer to have CUN order the books for you, you will have to follow the procedure mentioned above. Please be aware that e-books, ordered at discount web-shops, usually don't offer advantages like 'reflowable' formats (formats that adjust themselves to the type of device you are using), 'read aloud' (great for students with dyslexia) and 'study tools' (like highlighting).

In the Literature References you will find direct hyperlinks to VitalSource, for e-books and Barnes & Noble, for paperbacks and hardcovers, for each available title in the list.

Warning: in case you order a used book, which originally contained an online access-code, that access-code may not be available or valid anymore!

Mandatory books will have to be ordered at least one month before the start of the concerning semester, to anticipate mistakes and late arrivals. For questions or if in doubt, about book-lists, courses to be taken and/or proper procedures and possibilities, please contact Student Services.

(E-)study Guides may be offered as separate books, but keep in mind that (E-)study Guides are useless without the actual text- or e-book.

VitalSource offers textbooks as e-books, some of them at lower prices than hardcovers or paperbacks. If you feel comfortable reading from a screen, you don't have to carry around heavy textbooks, you don't run the risk of forgetting certain books (unless you forget your laptop, e-reader or tablet, of course) and it does comply with CUN's 'green workspace policy'. Also bear in mind that most web-shops only send their paper books to Western countries and very often not even all Western countries. So, if you really want or need a paper title and it can't be send to the country you reside in, use the BORF/BOC procedure, so we can order it for you. If a book is available as e-book, the e-book ISBN number and price are given using an '@' sign.

Method of referencing literature

Concept Based Curriculum (CBC)

CUN's curriculum is 'concept based'. This means, that content is not (only) offered in a traditional way, plenary in class, using textbooks. Instead, the curriculum is built on concepts and different phenomena, health related issues, nursing related issues and patient-related issues, are analyzed in a 'top-down' fashion, starting with a concept as the 'greatest common divisor', the 'main theme', so to speak. That means, that courses are not necessarily offered in a traditional and chronological/linear 'one course-component at the time' method. The emphasis is on the inter- and intra-relationships between and within concepts, touching different topics at the same time, analyzing healthcare scenarios. However, almost all healthcare related literature is based on certain specific topics and therefore the Literature References found below are also structured in a traditional, course-wise way. The order in which and the course-wise way in which literature is referenced below, does not necessarily reflect any course-plan, course-schedule or the way in which textbooks and other educational material is offered or the order in which literature is used, by faculty-members!

Recommended literature

Some Literature References also mention 'recommended' literature. These books are for students who desire a deeper understanding of certain topics or feel they need certain topics explained in different ways or different contexts. Some of these books are used by faculty-members to develop additional course-materials. Tests and exams are always based on mandatory literature and additional course-materials, made available to the students. Therefore, before buying (expensive) recommended literature, we suggest you first discuss your needs with a faculty-member, your mentor, your tutor and/or see if a certain recommended book is available in one of CUN's (electronic) libraries.

Online additional resources

For certain literature, publishers offer online resources, with additional content, quizzes, flashcards, real life examples, video clips, pre-tests and critical thinking scenarios. Most of these resources can be used free of charge or by logging in with an access-code, that comes with a particular textbook (see VitalSource instructions above). Some online resources can be accessed by logging in with an access-code, that needs to be bought separately. In the Literature References below, you can see which textbooks come with free online resources (look for it in the 'Title' field). You are, of course, free to use these e-resources, as you see fit. However, please be advised that CUN's curriculum is concept based and that therefore a wide variety of e-resources, virtual healthcare scenarios and simulations are integrated in the course-plans. The content and structure of and the methods used in the course-plans are always leading. Faculty-members are always able and willing to point out how to use other additional (e-)resources.

Bookboon initiative

Finally, we would like you to be aware of the "Bookboon" initiative (<https://bookboon.com/>). On Bookboon's website students can find hundreds of freely downloadable e-books on a large variety of topics. These e-books are written and published by experts in their field and made available to the public, without any costs involved. The goal of the initiative is to make knowledge available to everyone. Although 'Nursing' or 'Healthcare' are not (yet) 'dedicated' Bookboon topics, it can be interesting for all students to have a browse through the Bookboon inventory, to see what can be of interest to them. There are no references given, to any e-book to be found on the Bookboon website.

Literature References Per Course Per Semester

All below mentioned prices are in USD. All prices below are VitalSource online bookstore and Barnes & Noble online bookstore prices, at the date of publication of this document. Prices may change in time, without prior notice. Where both hardcovers and paperbacks are offered online, the (lower) paperback price is given. Some books may have both an ISBN-10 (old number) and an ISBN-13 (the longer new number). In those cases both ISBN's are given. Optional books, like Study Guides, are in blue. Double-check the edition-numbers. Even if an edition is not the latest edition, use the edition given in this book-list!
